

Survey on School Harassment and Protection in Kenya

Objective

- To gather quantitative data on people's experiences, perceptions, and awareness of school harassment issues in Kenya, and their knowledge of organizations that address these issues.

Hypotheses

1. A majority of students in Kenya are aware of school harassment but do not know where to report incidents.
2. Most respondents believe that mentorship programs in schools reduce the incidence of harassment.
3. Organizations providing direct engagement, like helplines, are more effective than those offering indirect support (e.g., policy advocacy).

Introduction

Hello! My name is Joseph, an apprentice software engineer at Zone01. I am conducting a survey on school harassment in Kenya to understand people's awareness, experiences, and perceptions of available support systems. This will help us identify trends and gaps in addressing these issues and better understand how organizations can improve. Your participation is anonymous, and the survey should only take a few minutes. Please fill the survey here.
